OKINAWA

Welcome to Okinawa and the 313th Air Division. If you are a visitor or being assigned here you will find a community of dedicated, friendly Air Force people who are engaged in a vital mission, but none the less concerned about your individual welfare.

This brochure has been prepared for your convenience and assistance in familiarizing you with organizations, facilities, their services, and other data useful while one is on Okinawa.

The United States has no territorial aims in the Ryukyu Islands. It does not desire to acquire permanently one square foot of land in the Ryukyus. Its one and only purpose is to preserve the peace of the world and to prevent aggression.

The sincerity used in understanding the people here will be an important measure of your success. Remember the Okinawan people have personal likes and dislikes and the same desire for life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness as ourselves.

Okinawa is basically Japanese in its customs, language and dress. The Japanese flag is recognized here and flown on specific occasions. We give the same respect to this fact in the same manner the we expect courtesy for our national colors.

Modern Okinawa is a curious mixture of both Far Eastern and Western Cultures. Truly East and West have met here and the results are most interesting.

If you will be as pleasant, courteous, and considerate to the people you meet in Okinawa as you are to your neighbors and co-workers back home, you cannot miss being a success in your "ambassadorial" role on Okinawa.

You can also make your assignment on Okinawa the most memorable in your Air Force career.

COMPOSITION AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Reason for Existence

Strategically located in the Western Pacific, Okinawa is an excellent base for military operations. The Air Force mission in the area is: (1) air defense of the Ryukyu Islands, (2) to support a combat ready force and (3) to train and prepare units for combat.

Installations

Two jet airfields on Okinawa form the nucleus of air power responsible for an assigned 300,000 square mile area designated the Okinawa Air Defense Identification Zone.

Kadena Air Base centers around two parallel air strips. One strip is 12,000 feet long and one is 9,900 feet. Both strips can accommodate any aircraft flying today.

Naha Air Base, fifteen miles distant from Kadena, has a single 8,000 foot runway.

Both bases have the most modern servicing equipment available to all authorized users. Navigational aids, instrument landing equipment and base facilities combine to permit 24-hour all weather operations.

The bases serve as home to most Air Force personnel, furnishing housing- markets, medical care, schools and recreation for servicemen and their dependents.

Four of the 47 other inhabited islands of the Ryukyu archipelago contain Air Force installations. These are weather stations, aircraft control and warning units and a gunnery range

Mission

The primary mission of the 313th Air Division is to maintain assigned forces in a state of combat readiness that will insure the success of any directed military operation. In short, the mission is to be prepared to fight, and to this end, the division trains every day.

In addition to maintaining units to conduct offensive and defensive operations, the 313th supports the Military Assistance Advisory Groups in the Western Pacific and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization operations and programs. Support of the Military Assistance Advisory Group is in the area of Air Defense training and training of mechanics and ground personnel to better utilize and maintain their equipment. SEATO support is generally in the form of Joint Exercises or demonstrations to which tactical forces are contributed.

The division supports the Strategic Air Command by providing a base of operation for the 4252nd Strategic Wing. This wing furnishes tanker support for PACAF fighter operations in the Western Pacific as well as supporting the refueling of SAC aircraft. Kadena AB is also a typhoon "Safe Haven" base for the SAC force on Guam.

The organizational structure established to support the mission of the 313th Air Division is not unusual except for the relationship with the 30th Artillery Brigade. This Brigade is manned and equipped by the United States Army, but is under the operational control of the Commander, 313th Air Division, who is responsible for the air defense of the Ryukyu Islands.

The division has combat units at Kadena AB and Naha AB that are supported by the 824th and the 51st Combat Support Groups, respectively. These combat units are the 51st Fighter-Interceptor Wing at Naha AB as the defensive arm, and the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing and the 498th Tactical Missile Group at Kadena AB.

General Information

Defense Chain

All Department of Defense Services are represented on Okinawa. The U. S. Marine Corps, the largest unit, is located at several bases. The Army, third in strength, however has the greatest responsibility for maintaining and supporting the necessities of servicemen here. In addition to its defense mission, Army units perform the major police work and provide such island facilities as a milk and ice cream plant, a bakery, a waterworks, electrical power, a hospital, petroleum storage and distribution, harbors and ports, post and base exchanges, telephone system, etc. The Army also works directly with the U. S. Civilian Administrator and the High Commissioner who is an Army Lieutenant General.

The U. S. Navy, under the title of Fleet Activities Ryukyus, performs air and sea operations utilizing the ports of White Beach and Naha Air Base supports most Navy air operations of Okinawa.

Fifth Air Force, with two divisions in Japan, one on Okinawa and another in Korea, is part of Pacific Air Forces' air arm in the Pacific. With its allies, PACAF is responsible for maintaining control of the air over the Pacific Far East. In so doing, it operates over one-third of the earth's surface.

There are upwards of 75,000 U. S. citizens on Okinawa. This figure includes servicemen and civilian employees, their dependents and a small number of American businessmen. Many Americans live "on the economy"—outside the U. S. bases. Business and social relationships are close, and the necessity to co-exist peacefully and to the mutual benefit of all is evident.

Community Relations

The Air Force has a continuing large people-to-people and community relations program. Every official unit is engaged in this worthy endeavor. Assistance to communities runs the gamut of welfare, physical assistance particularly in the fields of construction, and advisory aid in promoting progress and improving the local standards of living.

In addition to official Air Force unit contributions, such agencies as Wives' Clubs, fraternal organizations and various benevolent groups are actively engaged in humanitarian and cultural activities. Entire villages, schools, orphanages and even a leper colony are among community activities receiving American assistance.

There are also many individuals independently engaged with such worthy projects as sponsoring students and educational scholarship programs. Many orphans are adopted by American servicemen during their tour on Okinawa.

What to Expect

Although there is housing at both Kadena Air Base and Naha Air Base, the waiting list denies immediate occupancy for most grades.

Since furniture is provided by the bases for both on-base and off-base housing, your household goods shipment will be limited to 2,000 pounds. A delay of six to eight weeks should be expected for the arrival of your household goods and hold baggage. About the same delay can be expected if a car is shipped from the U.S.

Before leaving the States, shot records should be brought up to date to avoid delays along the route. Pets may be shipped at personal expense. Forwarding addresses should be arranged with Stateside post offices before leaving. The shade 1505 uniform may be worn between the U.S. and Okinawa.

Off-base housing for military personnel must be approved by the Joint-Services Housing Control Office, and you should put your name on their waiting list as soon as you arrive here. Orders will be prepared for moving your family as soon as this office issues a certificate that they have inspected a house you are renting or buying.

The same office sets the rent on housing after their inspection. Rent is based on size, number of rooms, condition of house, etc., and is usually ranged from $75 to $125 per month. Houses may also be purchased on the island for $3500 to $7000 dollars.

Electricity, rather than natural gas, is used on Okinawa. The usual monthly cost for utilities is $25 to $35, but air-conditioning, which is highly desirable, will raise this figure. Kerosene heaters may be purchased locally for the cooler months, and reverse-cycle air-conditioners are popular. Appliances are available through base exchanges.

Most military families use some domestic help. Maids, yard boys, and sewgirls may be hired for $1.00 to $1.50 per day, depending on their skill.

In making off-base food purchases in restaurants or markets, you must consider the food source and the sanitation of the establishment. Approval establishments are marked with a red "A" issued by the Army inspecting authority. All fresh vegetables purchased which will be eaten raw should be washed in a mild solution of clorox and water. Generally, you should avoid drinking water off-base, except in approved eating establishments.

Mosquito protection is necessary, as the female mosquito on Okinawa may carry the germ of Japanese B encephalitis. You should wear long sleeves and pants after dark, use aerosol bombs and insect repellent, and keep screens repaired.

The Habu is a poisonous snake with an aggressive nature that is prevalent in areas of tall grass. Though habus are not often in the more inhabited parts of Okinawa, children should be kept out of tall grass.

Unexploded bombs, shells, and grenades from WW II are sometimes turned up by children. All items of unexploded ordnance should be left undisturbed and should be immediately reported to the nearest explosive ordnance disposal unit or the Ryukyu Armed Forces Police.

Dependent children may attend elementary schools at Naha Air Base or Kadena Air Base, or Kubasaki High School, which accommodates all services on Okinawa. Kindergarten is not included in the Air Force school system but is available for $12 per month. Nursery school is also available at Kadena Air Base. Bus service is provided to and from schools for dependent children living on and off base.

Complete medical care is available at dispensaries at Kadena Air Base and Naha Air Base, and the U.S. Army hospital at Camp Kue.

Rest centers are maintained at Okuma for officers and Yaka for enlisted personnel. Overnight facilities are available by reservation, and rates are moderate.

The U.S. dollar is the official currency on Okinawa. Banking service is provided by American Express Company facilities on Kadena Air Base and Naha Air Base, and a Bank of America establishment in the city of Naha.

Daily news is provided by Armed Forces Radio and Television Services (AFRTS) and the English-language papers, the MORNING STAR and the Okinawa edition of STARS AND STRIPES. Both Kadena Air Base and Naha Air Base have weekly base papers.

Background

From its earliest history in 1314, Okinawa experienced independence until 1372, when it came under the political influence of China. The Japanese began to exert political pressure, and in 1451 the King of Okinawa began to pay an annual tribute to both Japan and China. The characteristic mildness, pliability, acquiescence and agreeableness of the Okinawans are believed to have been acquired during this period when they attempted to serve two powerful nations at the same time.

Americans first became acquainted with Okinawa in 1853, when Commodore Matthew C. Perry visited Okinawa seeking a fueling port for trade with Japan. In 1879, Japan declared that the Ryukyu Islands were part of the Japanese empire.

Japan used Okinawa as a defense base until 1945, when American forces took the island with great loss of life on both sides. Today Okinawa plays a major strategic role in the offensive and defensive position of the free nations of the world.

Though Japan maintains residual sovereignty over the Ryukyus, the United States administers the islands through the Civil Administration for the Ryukyu Islands (USCAR), headed by a military High Commissioner. The Ryukyans govern a large portion of their civil affairs through the Government of the Ryukyu Islands (GRI), which consists of a 32-member legislature, an Okinawan Chief Executive approved by the High Commissioner, and a judiciary.

Okinawa's 63-mile length holds a population of nearly a million people on an area of 454 square miles. It is located about 400 miles from Red China, and approximately 800 miles from Tokyo and Manila.

The typhoon season is from June to November. Island rainfall is heavy, with an average of 84 inches annually at Naha, and with rain on about 202 days of the year. Humidity averages 79 percent annually with an average temperature of 72°F, making air-conditioning almost a necessity.

Modern Okinawa is a mixture of Japanese and American cultures. Its customs, language, and traditional dress are Japanese, but the American influence since WW II has added a Western flavor to dress and facilities.

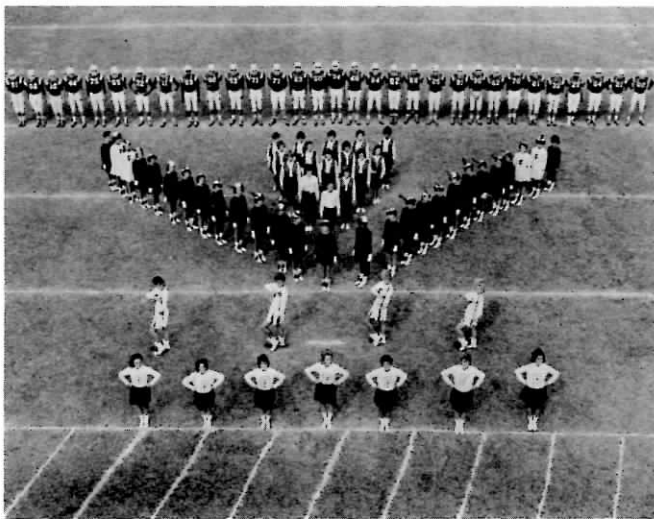

Physically, the Ryukyuan is small but sturdy, averaging about five feet in height. Most Ryukyans have dark hair and their skin has a bronze hue, characteristic of both Oriental and Polynesian features.

Agriculture is the basis of the economy, with sugar cane and pineapples as the chief cash crops. Sweet potatoes, rice, and soy beans are grown extensively for local consumption.

Fishing, light processing, beer, and crafts such as lacquerware, ceramics, brassware, jewelry, cloth, and hand-blown glass round out the local industry.

A typical on base service station.

School activities are wide and varied.

Clinics are well equipped and staffed.

Kadena's Elementary School highlights this view of some of the base's modern facilities.

Yokoso Kadena Kokutai E (Welcome to Kadena)

As you arrive on the largest Air Force installation in the Far East, you will find, that physically, it is not unlike other bases in the United States you have known. Its wide roads, modern exchange and commissary facilities, housing areas, barracks, dining halls, open messes and other facilities all will be thoroughly familiar to you.

However, there will be many interesting and varied differences to absorb your attention. Small taxis continually dart around the base, offering trips at very low rates. You will see many Ryukyuan employees engaged in a variety of jobs. You will experience some of the most agreeable climatic (and some not so agreeable) conditions. You will find opportunities to mingle with and to learn the culture and language of the Ryukyuan people. And you will find a plethora of recreational and entertainment activities and facilities at your disposal.

Kadena Air Base is home for the Headquarters, 313th Air Division, the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing, the 4252nd Strategic Wing (SAC), the 824th Combat Support Group, and many other assigned or attached organizations.

As one of the key installations in the Pacific, Kadena's personnel remain in a constant state of preparedness. Practice tactical exercises are held regularly to maintain operational readiness and the wailing of alert sirens and the sound of the klaxons soon become familiar to everyone connected with the base.

Kadena was taken by the Americans on April 1, 1945, in the closing months of World War II. At that time, it consisted of only one runway, a 1,500 meter strip badly pocked with bomb craters, and a few buildings of limited value. However, immediate repairs were begun and fighter aircraft were using the strip within eight days.

Construction progressed rapidly in the post-war period. Today, Kadena presents the appearance of a modern state-side air base, with most of its buildings consisting of typhoon-resistant, concrete-block structures, and its personnel and their families enjoying high standards in their living and working facilities.

Remember, though, that while you are here, you are the foreigner. The attention of the Ryukyuan people will be focused on you, and your individual actions and attitudes while here can create lasting favorable or unfavorable impressions.

Everything you do will be scrutinized, analyzed and judged in relation to the propaganda continually broadcast by Communist countries on the Asian mainland. If your behavior supports its claim that American people are prejudiced bigots, unconcerned about other people, disrespectful of their customs and culture, and materialists who have grown soft through years of easy living, then you will not be serving our cause.

Okinawa is important to us as a vital military base of operations and as a showcase for our way of life. To achieve our objectives, we need to inspire the respect and confidence of the Ryukyuan people so that their co-operation and assistance is assured.

All that it requires is a little tact, courtesy and consideration on your part. These everyday attributes of civilized persons can reap tremendous dividends, not only for you, but for our country.

May your tour in Okinawa be a pleasant and enjoyable one.

18th Tactical Fighter Wing

ON THE ALERT IN THE PACIFIC

The history of the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing begins with the organization by the War Department of a Provisional Pursuit Group at Wheeler Field, Hawaii, on 21 January 1927. The Group was almost immediately redesignated the 18th Pursuit Group and spent the years between 1927 and 1941 in normal maneuvers, exercises, and training as part of the air defenses of Hawaii. The Group suffered heavy losses in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and was able to launch only two of its P-40 aircraft, one of which was almost immediately shot down. In March 1943, the 18th Fighter Group arrived at Guadalcanal and assumed command of three Fighter Squadrons already operating in the area. The Group participated in the campaigns for the Southern Russells, Rabaul, Bougainville, New Georgia, Halmaheras, Celebes, Borneo, and Leyte and Luzon in the Philippine Islands. World War II battle honors include the Central Pacific, Northern Solomons, Bismark Archipelago, Western Pacific, Southern Philippines, and Luzon. The Group received a Distinguished Unit Citation for action in the Philippines in 1944.

From the end of World War II until Korea, the Group was based at Clark Air Base, in the Philippines, and was the first overseas fighter unit to be jet equipped when it received F-80 aircraft. Within a short time after the start of the Korean hostilities, the Group was operating in Korea, augmented by the South African Number Two Fighter Squadron. Re-equipped with F-51 Mustang aircraft, the Group became famous for its destruction of vehicles, warehouses, factories, bridges, troop concentrations, and anti-aircraft sites. The Group, well known as the "Truckbusters from Dogpatch Air Base," was the first USAF Unit to shoot down an enemy prop-driven aircraft over Korea, and the first to encounter the Soviet-built MIG-15. One of its officers, Major Louis J. Sebille, Commander of the 67th Fighter-Bomber Squadron, was the first to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor in Korea. The Group earned ten battle honors in Korea, as well as two Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citations and two Distinguished Unit Citations.

In 1954 the 18th Fighter-Bomber Wing transferred to Kadena Air Base, Okinawa, where it was redesignated the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing. It was awarded additional Air Force recognition by receiving the AF Outstanding Unit Award in 1961, and again in 1965.

The Wing has had many distinguished personalities on its rolls, including General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Major General Claire Chennault, General Nathan S. Twining, General Lauris Norstad, Lt General Samuel Anderson, Lt General Roger S. Ramey, Lt General Frank Everest, and many others. Its first aircraft were a DH-4B of World War I vintage and some PW-9 fighters, but it has since flown almost every fighter type used by the USAF. During World War II, it flew the P-39, P-40, P-38, P-51, P-47, P-61, and P-70 aircraft, and during the short peace that followed it flew the F-51 Mustang and the F-86 Sabre. At Kadena Air Base, it flew the F-100, and is now the first F-105 Wing in the Pacific. The 15th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron, with its own proud history in Europe and the Pacific, flies the RF-101 Voodoo.

On Guard in the Pacific Skies

The 18th Tactical Fighter Wing is the only United States Air Force Wing that has never been stationed in the continental United States. Born, tested, and matured in the vast Pacific, it remains on alert on Okinawa, the Keystone of the Pacific, ready to protect the peace and freedom of the United States and other free nations of the world.

Mission

The mission of the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing is to maintain assigned aircraft and personnel in a high state of readiness and to provide the capability to execute fighter missions designed to destroy enemy forces and facilities.

Organization

The 18th Tactical Fighter Wing is assigned to the 313th Air Division. It is provided with a headquarters, facilities, equipment, and personnel with assigned tactical and maintenance units necessary to carry out its mission.

Responsibilities

The Commander, 18th Tactical Fighter Wing, exercises command, administrative and operational control of assigned and attached units, unless otherwise specified by competent authority. He is directly responsible to the Commander, 313th Air Division.

4252d Strategic Wing (SAC)

History

A KC-135 Stratotanker lifts into the air from Kadena Air Base. These sleek jet refueling aircraft are assigned to the 4252d Strategic Wing (SAC), home of the "Young Tigers."

The 4252d Strategic Wing was activated at Kadena Air Base on 13 January 1965, and equipped with sleek KC-135 Stratotanker jet refueling aircraft.

The first "Young Tigers," which is the nickname for the wing, were mostly TDY personnel from numerous SAC bases in the United States. In March, the TDY men were gradually being replaced by permanent party men.

The 4252d Strategic Wing, which is assigned to the 3d Air Division headquartered at Andersen AFB, Guam, was activated by SAC to provide aerial refueling support for U.S. Air Force aircraft on missions in the Western Pacific area.

During the first two months of operation the new wing was composed of temporary duty personnel from nearly every SAC KC-135 refueling squadron in the world.

The 4252d Strategic Wing, which consisted originally of a headquarters squadron and a consolidated aircraft maintenance squadron, has grown considerably in size since those first months of operation. The unit now has four squadrons assigned--field maintenance, organizational maintenance, armament and electronics maintenance, and headquarters squadrons.

The Young Tigers are, in essence, pioneers in the type of organization they support. As sole manager of global U.S. Air Force aerial refueling, SAC has charged the 4252d with the responsibility of all air-to-air jet refueling in this part of the world.

The new wing, as a tenant unit of the 313th Air Division at Kadena, has in many cases, integrated its maintenance shops or shares facilities with the 18th Tactical Fighter Wing, their Pacific Air Force hosts.

This mutual support between SAC and PACAF personnel goes beyond the shops and includes some of the missions too. These missions include SAC refueling support for PACAF fighter training missions.

This training program is in support of fighter unit forces prepared to move by direction of the President in the event of a crisis to deter any "would-be" aggressor--regardless of area or tactics. The 4252d also supports training missions generated by SAC for aircraft assigned to the 3d Air Division and other SAC units in the Western Pacific. Numerous types of PACAF missions in the Western Pacific and Far East are supported by the Young Tigers.

The 4252d Strategic Wing is a vital link in the U.S. Air Force mission of "Aerospace Power For Peace." The Young Tigers are dedicated to the motto of SAC--"Peace Is Our Profession."

824th Combat Support Group

Base Operations--nerve center of Kadena Air Base flying activities.

The 824th Combat Support Group was activated on 8 December 1964 under the command of Colonel James D. C. Robinson. The unit, previously known as the 6313th Air Base Wing, also was under the command of Colonel Robinson.

The 824th Combat Support Group was organized to fulfill the tasks which had been the responsibility of the 6313th Air Base Wing.

The 824th CSG supports the offensive mission of the 18th Tac Fighter Wing and 498th Tactical Missile Group, both headquartered at Kadena AB.

The 824th is charged with administrative and logistical support to other Kadena Base units in accordance with the direction of the Commander, 313th Air Division.

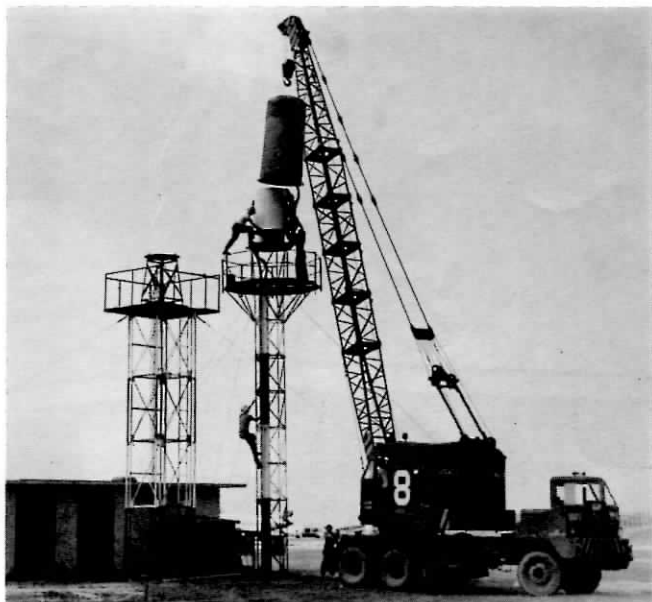

The 824th CSG provides Kadena Air Base with all base facilities, equipment, and personnel for immediate and adequate support of elements of SAC, TAC, PACAF, and MAC. It also provides an air terminal at Kadena AB for military aircraft. Internal security of assigned installations and ground defense of these installations and their facilities against pilferage, acts of sabotage, or organized attack is provided by the 824th CSG. This includes the organization, equipping, and training of assigned troops in ground defense.

The 824th CSG also has the job of administering and supervising the Air Force Civilian Personnel Program for the Ryukyu Islands, with the exception of those civilian employees of the 313th Air Division on the island of Okinawa Erabu Shima. The Group performs such other tasks as directed by the Commander, 313th Air Division.

Security guards perform drill.

GEEIA

One of the least known and most unique units on Kadena is Detachment 2, 2875th Ground Electronics Engineering Installation Agency (GEEIA). Det. 2 with its headquarters at Tachikawa AB, Japan, is responsible for the installation of communication-electronic facilities and their modernization, relocation removal and rehabilitation on Kadena, Naha and four off-shore islands. The detachment is composed of officers and airmen who are permanently assigned to Kadena and who are charged with the responsibility of installing those communication-electronic schemes and job orders associated with the sections of the unit. In this photo a GEEIA team installs a Tactical Air Navigational unit which will serve the base.

The 11th Air Postal Squadron, headquartered here at Kadena Air Base, is charged with the operation of all postal facilities on Okinawa, Taiwan, Philippines, Viet Nam, Thailand and Indonesia. The Squadron is composed of 26 officers, 370 airmen and 25 civilians located in 36 Detachments in the six countries.

The squadron also operates an armed forces courier transfer station located at Clark AB, Philippines, eight aerial mail terminals and five area postal directories.

Weather Information

Detachment 8, 20th Weather Squadron, exists at Kadena Air Base to provide forecasting and up-to-the minute weather data. Since Okinawa is located in a large area of the Western Pacific known as "Typhoon Alley", the weather station here plays a more important role by keeping U.S. military personnel informed with Typhoon information. Detachment 8 is the official weather station for all U.S. Forces in the Ryukyu Islands.

Standardization/Evaluation

Words synonymous with the jet age are mobility, flexibility and versatility. These necessary ingredients are blended into Air Force activities through near scientific efforts of "standardization/evaluation" teams, and more locally the 6002d Standardization Evaluation Group at Kadena. The group assists in recommending, establishing and perfecting standard and efficient procedures for doing things properly. Their mission is increased effectiveness of the Air Force's most critical endeavor-flight operations.

The group evaluates the performance of all aircrews, aircraft control and warning operations personnel, missile launch crews and air munitions loading crews. An additive mission requires that the Pacific Air Forces Standardization Evaluation Group monitor and disseminate information on combat tactics and techniques designed to improve operational effectiveness.

Communications Network

One of the most important functions toward the operation of a large military installation is communications. These "reins of command" are provided by the 1962nd Communications Group. They support the mission of the 313th Air Division by maintaining and operating all fixed communications systems for Kadena Air Base.

Among their functions they provide communications/electronics staff supervision for the 313th and assigned units; provide air traffic and control services for the Okinawa Flight Information Region; and maintain control and provide operational and maintenance guidance to other detachments located in the area.

Other Units

Backing up the major units on Kadena are many tenant organizations assigned to other major air commands. They include Strategic Air Command (SAC), Military Airlift Command (MAC), Air Force Communications Service (AFCS), Air Training Command (ATC), Air Force Logistics Command (AFLC) and Tactical Air Command (TAC).

The following is a list of tenant units and their command:

- SAC-4252nd Strategic Wing
- MAC-603d Military Airlift Support Squadron
- Det. 8, 20th Weather Squadron
- Det. 3, 9th Aero Medical Evacuation Squadron
- AFCS-1962nd Communications Group
- ATC-911A Field Training Detachment
- FTD 911-L, 3415th Technical School
- AFLC-GEEIA
- TAC-4440th Aircraft Delivery Group, Det. 12

Passenger Cargo Service

The 603d Military Airlift Support Squadron, the Military Airlift Command unit based at Kadena, provides various transportation services to all Military aircraft utilizing Okinawa as a jumping-off point to world-wide ports.

The nerve center of the Kadena operation is "MAC Airlift Command Post." This installation is a beehive of communication coordinating activities which include monitoring; all MAC aircraft in the area; MAC forward supply section; maintenance of MAC aircraft; Air Freight incoming and outgoing; and fleet service including preparing aircraft for flight and equipping with lunches and such other gear necessary in air transporting operations.

All air terminal facilities and services are functions of the 603d except the ATCO counter. The Air Transportation Coordinating Office is manned by Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force personnel to facilitate passenger booking. Some of the terminal facilities include offices for contract commercial air operations, weather, flight planning, aircraft traffic control, base exchange annex, restaurant, family services lounge and a distinguished visitors' lounge.

Global Airlift

MAC planes, and military contract flights under MAC control, depart Kadena for destinations all around the compass. Some of these flights go non-stop to California bases and may even fly all the way to McGuire AFB, New Jersey, non-stop from Okinawa.

More than 1,300 housing units are located all over Kadena Air Base.

Kadena Base Services

Bachelor Quarters. Officers and airmen live in two-story, concrete block buildings which are conveniently located near major base activities. The rooming arrangements vary according to rank. However, in most cases, the individual will share his room with another man.

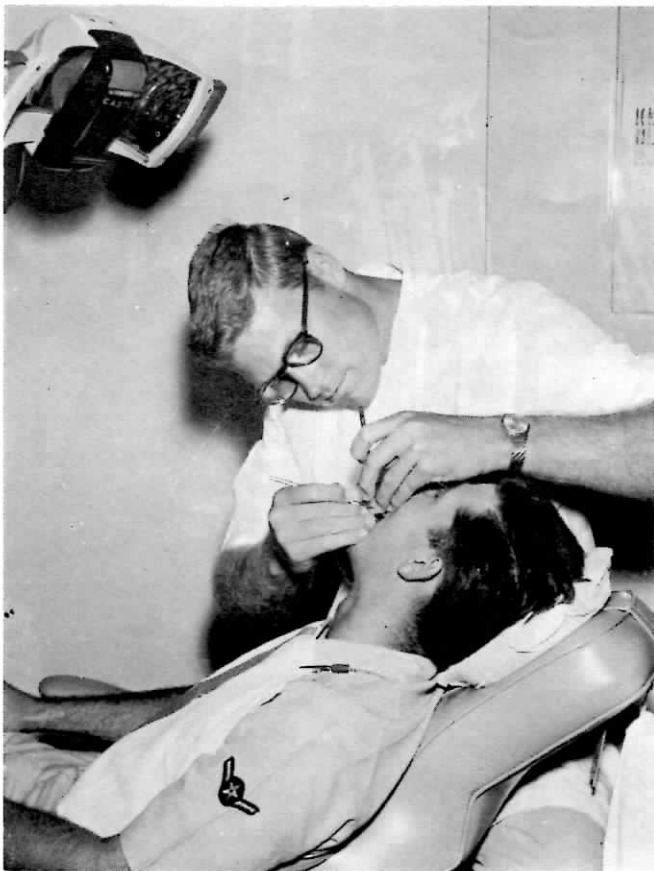

Government Housing. More than 1,300 permanent type quarters are available on Kadena. The quarters are of concrete block construction, varying in size and design. They have one, two, three or four bedrooms, a combination living-dining room, kitchen and bath. Five hundred new on-base quarters were recently added to supplement off-base housing with the promise of 200-500 to be added next year. Electricity and water are furnished in all government quarters. Telephone service is available at a nominal fee.

The point system prevails on Kadena varying with rank and time at the base. Colonels and chief master sergeants have concurrent travel and may move on base immediately upon arrival. Points in the other ranks down to AIC accumulate at the rate of one per month from the time of departure from the ZI. Waiting periods for the ranks vary from 46 weeks for Lt. Col. to 250 weeks for AIC.

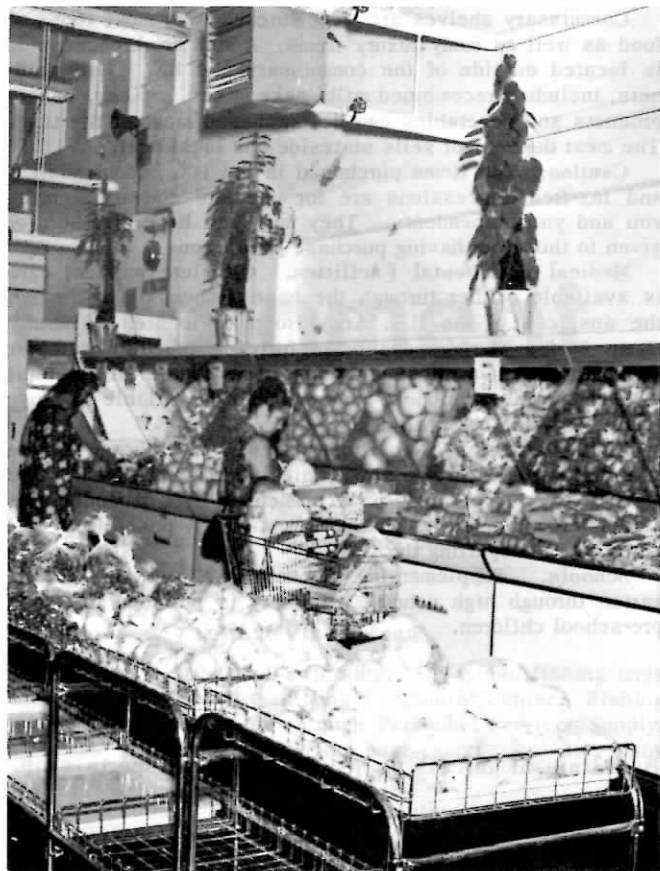

Government Furnishings. In Air Force quarters all basic items of furniture are provided, such as refrigerators, ranges, etc. However, you will have to provide your own dishes, kitchen utensils, silverware, pots and pans, all equipment for infants and small children, ironing boards and irons, and household linens, including blankets, sheets and pillows. Any of these items may also be purchased locally in the BX.

High humidity in this area is hard on veneered wood items and causes mildew in overstuffed furniture, rugs and leather goods. Such items should not be brought to Okinawa.

Base Exchange and Commissary. The base exchange well stocked with many well known stateside products. TVs, washing machines, dryers, refrigerators, sewing machines and most housekeeping products are readily available at moderate prices. Jewelry, watches, brassware, lacquerware, silver service, and pearls are also featured. The Vogue Shop offers a wide selection of clothing and shoes for all members of the family. Notions and sewing equipment are also available. Grouped around the Kadena Exchange are numerous concessions including an optical shop, electrical repair shop, silver shop, flower shop, tailor shop, laundry and dry cleaning facilities.

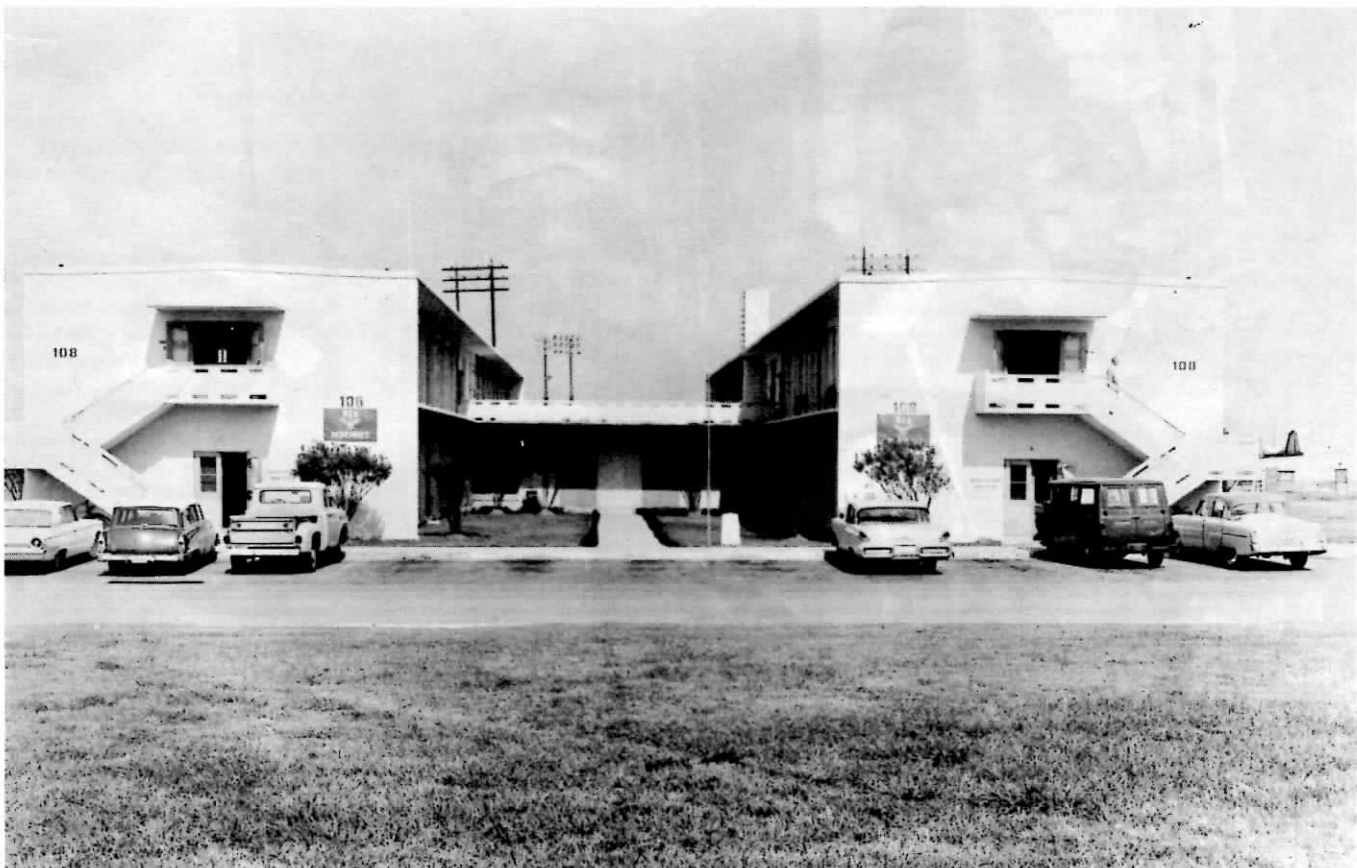

A dentist checks an airman's teeth.

The base commissary has an excellent food supply for Kadena Personnel.

A typical airmen's dormitory on Kadena.

Commissary shelves are well stocked with most items of food as well as many luxury items. A soft drink concession is located outside of the commissary and BX. Dairy products, including recombined milk, cake mixes, 'spices, bakery products and vegetables can be purchased most of the time. The meat department sells stateside and local beef.

Caution: The items purchased in the BXs, commissaries and tax-free concessions are for use and consumption by you and your dependents. They must not be either sold or given to those not having purchase privileges.

Medical and Dental Facilities. Complete medical care is available, either through the base dispensary or through the auspices of the U.S. Army Hospital located at nearby Camp Kue. The dispensary is fully equipped to care for most out-patient medical problems. The Camp Kue Hospital is a completely equipped, modern facility available to those cases requiring hospitalization.

Dental care is available and patients may take advantage of new facilities after a new clinic is completed soon. Due to limited personnel, it is recommended that dependents of personnel assigned to Okinawa obtain all possible dental care prior to departing the U.S.

Schools. Supplementing the off-base schools, kindergarten through high school, a nursery is provided for those pre-school children.

A feature of the BX is its well-stocked sports shop.

Two dining halls are located on Kadena for bachelor airmen.

Recreation and Entertainment

Kadena's personnel services offers a never-ending variety of recreational services and off-duty fun for people of all ages. No matter what the hobby is, personnel services either offers it now or will get it started for you.

Riding stables are located in the center of the base and one may take his pick of several horses to trot down the riding paths. Base Sports. The most popular entertainment for most military personnel is base and intramural sports. Kadena forms a team, both base-wide and intramural, in practically any sport imaginable.

Rest Centers. Excellent rest centers are maintained on Okinawa for military personnel and dependents--Okuma for officers and Yaka for enlisted. A third rest center--Ishikawa Beach--is operated for all grades. Unlike Okuma and Yaka, Ishikawa Beach has no overnight facilities. All three feature fine beaches, plus a full program of sports and recreation. The rates at Okuma and Yaka are moderate; however, reservations should be made in advance by phoning the rest centers.

For the Youngsters

Activities of the young and younger sets at Kadena are focused on the Youth Center which has a ballroom, game room, snack bar, hobby room, patio, skating rink and swimming pool.

Throughout the year youth activities sponsors cultural and recreational classes such as Japanese, tap, acrobatic, ballet, folk and ballroom dancing; baton twirling and cheer leading; art and ceramics; piano and guitar; roller skating, judo and driving instruction. During the summer vacation months a Day Camp is conducted for the youngsters as are increased activities for all age groups.

The athletic program includes the major seasonal sports including baseball, basketball and football teams competing in organized leagues. Youth bowling for boys and girls is also popular.

The Kadena Senior Teen Club is "In" for the High school set. This group sponsors the parties, dances, rallies, and like teen interests. The Falconettes, a march and drill team, the pep club, cheerleaders all make the "Falcons" team a winner in their rivalries with the other teen clubs on Okinawa. The junior high school level competitions follow the trends of the bigger boys.

A major event is the Kadena Karnival attended by hundreds of thousands of Americans and Okinawan friends. The proceeds of this affair contribute to the summer Youth Employment Program which permits teenagers to be gainfully employed during summer vacation periods.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cubs, Brownies, religious youth groups, and clubs sponsored by fraternal organizations are available for boys and girls and young men and women. Adults are encouraged to assist in the youth programs and to "Keep young with the youngsters".

Kadena's 18-hole golf course contrasts with the beaches of the East China Sea.

Two base theaters supply the best in movie entertainment.

Bowling Lanes.

Kadena's Airmen's Open Mess is one of the best in Far East.

Two libraries service Kadena with books for everyone.

There is always something to do at the base gym.

Popular among the younger set are the Teen Club dances.

NAHA AIR BASE

Naha Air Base's Main Gate

The 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing

Responsible for the air defense of the Ryukyuan Islands, the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing is steeped in traditions that date back to its inception as the 51st Pursuit Group (Interceptor) at Hamilton Field, California, in 1941.

Air defense has always played a big part in the history of the 51st. In 1941 it served as part of the defense force for the west coast of the United States and now, over 20 years later, it's serving a defensive role on the "Keystone of the Pacific."

The Wing is composed of the following units: the 51st Combat Support Group, the 51st Services Squadron, the 51st Transportation Squadron, the 51st Air Police Squadron, the 51st Civil Engineering Squadron, the 51st USAF Dispensary, the 51st Armament and Electronics Maintenance Squadron, the 51st Organizational Maintenance Squadron, the 51st Supply Squadron, and the 623rd Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron.

From its beginning in 1941, the 51st went on to compile an outstanding record, both in World War II and the Korean Conflict.

With its first aircraft, the P-40, the 51st saw its first combat in India. Redesignated the 51st Fighter Group and assigned to Tenth Air Force, the unit was defending the Indian terminus of the Hump route and airfields in that area in 1942.

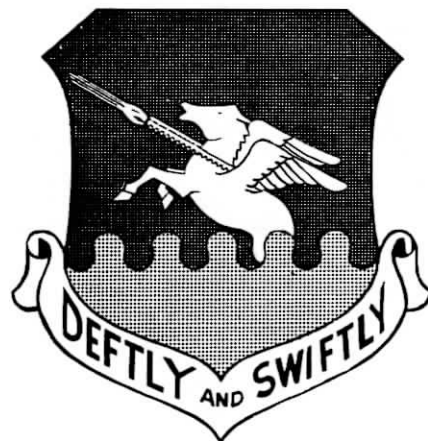

From 1943 through 1945, flying P-38's, P-40's, and (in 1945) P-51's, the 51st defended the eastern end of the route over the Hump, guarded air bases in the Kunming area, harassed Japanese shipping in the Red River Delta, and supported Chinese ground forces in their drive along the Salween River. At the end of the war the Group was inactivated.

Less than a year later, the 51st was reactivated at Yontan Airdrome, Okinawa and assigned the mission of air defense of the Ryukyus. In May of that year they moved to Naha Air Base and then in February of 1950 the unit was redesignated the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing.

When the communists invaded South Korea in June 1950, the 51st responded immediately and two days after the invasion, planes of the 4th Fighter Squadron flew strikes against the North Koreans. In September most of the Wing

Naha Air Base, located in the southern part of Okinawa adjacent to Naha City, is the home of the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing. This attractive base has grown from a lonely Pacific outpost to a thriving Air Force community in the years since World War II. It has all of the services that you will find on an Air Force Base and an active program of improvements adds to the Base's attractiveness every year.

In addition to the 51st FIW, there are 11 tenant organizations that make Naha Air Base their home. The largest of these tenant units is the 6315th Operations Group, with its 21st, 35th, 41st, and 817th Troop Carrier Squadrons. Then there is the 33rd Air Recovery Squadron; Detachment #1, 7th Aerial Port Squadron; Detachment #2, 11th Air Postal Squadron; Detachment #5, 5th Communications Squadron; Detachment #14, 1st Weather Wing; the 2152nd Communications Squadron; the 909th Field Training Detachment; the Naha Air Base Branch of the Auditor General; and the 43rd District Office, OSI. Also located at Naha are the Army's 1st Missile Battalion, 6th Artillery and the Naval Air Facility.

51st FIW Emblem

was transferred to Itazuke, Japan and then moved on to Kimpo, Korea in October. Operating from bases in Japan and Korea, the 51st flew combat against the communists until the armistice. They flew F-80's until November 1951 and finished out the conflict in the F-86.

From December 1, 1951 to July 27, 1953, the 51st claims against the MIG-15 were: 307 destroyed, 285 damaged, and 13 probably destroyed. Fourteen of the 39 Korean War aces were from the 51st, and Captain Joseph McConnell Jr. was the leading ace with 16 kills.

Naha Tenant Units

6315th OPERATIONS GROUP

The 6315th Operations Group, with its four troop carrier squadrons, is an important element in the Pacific Air Forces airlift capability. Flying the C-130 "Hercules," aircrews of the 6315th maintain constant combat readiness to provide the intra-theater airlift necessary to assure the success of any operation.

The 6315th is under the 315th Air Division and was elevated to Group level on October 20, 1964. It was previously designated Detachment 1, 315th Air Division (Combat Cargo).

The 33rd Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron has as its mission search, rescue, and recovery of distressed military personnel and, in addition to providing rescue services for downed aircrews, etc., has played and continues to play an important role in the United States' space program.

Reformed in 1961, after a brief deactivation, the 33rd has been credited with saving the lives of over 40 persons (both military and civilian) and assisting over 400 persons to safety or medical help.

2152nd COMM SQ

The 2152nd Communications Squadron, a unit of the Air Force Communications Service, provides adequate, reliable and secure communications, flight facilities and air traffic control services at Naha AB.

The 2152nd was formed at Naha in July 1961, when the Air Force Communications Service was established as a major air command.

7th AERIAL PORT SQ

The 7th Aerial Port Squadron maintains and operates an air freight, cargo and passenger terminal on Naha.

DET. #14 1st WX WING

This detachment provides meteorological services for all U. S. land and air forces operating in and through Naha Air Base. This includes weather observations, forecasts, severe weather warnings and climatological data.

DET. #2 11th AIR POSTAL SQ.

With mail an important morale factor for base personnel, personnel of this detachment make it their business to receive and dispatch the mail by the fastest means.

DET. #1 5th COMM SQ.

This detachment provides fixed communications support and local mobile communications teams to support the mobility capabilities of the 315th Air Division.

909th FLT TRAINING DET.

The 909th provides ground training for air crews, mechanics and maintenance specialists.

NAHA BRANCH AUDITOR GENERAL

The Naha Branch of the Auditor General is responsible for auditing every organization on base, which includes reviewing management and the accuracy of all related reports.

43rd DIST OFF-OSI

This office provides centrally-directed counter-intelligence, personnel security, and criminal investigations as a service for all commanders on base.

One of Four 51st FIW Radar Sites

The 623rd AC&W Squadron and the 2152nd Communications Squadron both have detachments that are not located on Naha Air Base. Each of these squadrons has detachments located at the four radar sites of the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing. They are: Detachment #1, located on Miyako Jima, an island 155 nautical miles southwest of Naha; Detachment #2, located on Kume Jima, an island 55 nautical miles west of Naha; Detachment #3 (Yoza Dake), located on the island of Okinawa, 5½ miles south of Naha; and Detachment #4, located on Okino Erabu Shima, an island 90 nautical miles north of Naha.

Each of the sites has a small branch base exchange, a club, library, hobby shop, workout room, and a concrete tennis court that can also be used for basketball.

They all have well-developed and active programs of intramural sports, which include tennis, softball, volleyball, football, and basketball. They also have water sports, including fishing, swimming, and skin diving.

Another activity that site personnel utilize is the education office, and they each have a medic assigned, with any emergency medical treatment required just a short flight away.

Yoza Dake, the only site that is not a 12-month remote tour, is such a short distance from Naha that the personnel are able to avail themselves of Naha's facilities.

Construction Almost Completed On New Service Club

The personnel of Naha Air Base are proud of the facilities on the Base and the beauty of the base is continually enhanced by the new buildings that go up every year. The quonset huts are slowly disappearing and being replaced by permanent concrete block buildings. Many of the attractive buildings that you see on these pages are relatively new and there are a number of new facilities now under construction or on the planning boards.

Of the new facilities projects, one of the most impressive is the new $257,000 service club which is nearing completion. In the more than 10,000 square feet of floor space, the new service club will have a large ballroom, separate meeting rooms, a game room, television room, music room, dressing room, a large lounge, a stage and an outside patio.

Other projects in various stages of planning or construction are: an addition to the dependent elementary school; an addition to the automobile hobby shop; an addition to the Officers Open Mess; a recently completed addition to the library; and an addition to the recreation workshop, to name a few.

This RIVER OF GOD that Ezekiel (47:1-9) envisions flowing from the Temple of God all the way down to the Dead Sea, suggests great earth-shaking events.

The origin of this water was the very source of life and without hesitation it flowed unto parched and arid areas. Its volume increased as its effectiveness spread. In breadth and depth it became more all-encompassing and life came forth along its banks. No pen can describe the full story of this river as it continues to flow on through the years of time.

Originating in God and reborn before the eyes of men through Jesus Christ, this river of God's Love and Mercy flows on into the lives of men, women and children. "Everything shall live whither the river cometh" is apt wording for the power of this stream. Never question the power of the flowing stream, for water has a way of accumulating in volume until every obstacle is overcome and buried in its inundating force.

At times, in the history of the church, it seemed as though the stream of God's message was choked off to flow no more. Life, however, has continued to rebuild empires, cities, and homes, even though the past had so ruthlessly destroyed the fruit of its labor.

This instant Power of God, so untouchable, disturbing and controversial to the Spiritually illiterate, is the consolation prize that exceeds the Grand Prize. It is not given to the one most highly qualified contestant, but rather to the publicly disqualified mass of individuals willing to accept. The only qualifying factor is to believe His Word. There is no loser in God. He is reliable, consistent and sure. He changes not. Everyone in the faith is a winner.

The dry, barren soil of Godless living, exposed and saturated in the Blessing of God, readily breaks forth in praise unto the Creator and Sustainer. Fruitful trees of righteousness grace all areas of life and there is an abundance of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance. There is no market surplus or even saturation in these commodities.

For certain the River of God calls forth the best of the land, touches the highest in men's measurement, and elevates all effort to a Godward scope, while continuing to flow onward with ever-increasing force and volume. No power on earth has been able to divert aught of this Force or thwart its effectiveness. It is still sufficient to fully terminate and set aside the ravaging effects of disease, habits and all manner or sin.

The fact that this Gospel stems from the Throne of God should be enough for anyone to say, "This river must flow!", but still skeptics choose to wait and see. Possibly they are as the proverbial desert-dweller found sitting beside the river waiting for the water to pass by. As certain as the sun has risen in the East for milleniums of time, so this River of God must flow ever onward until the fulfillment of time.

His invitation is always, "Come on in and see the Joy of the Lord in abundant fullness".

● Animal Bite

It is the responsibility of everyone who is bitten or who has a member of his household bitten, to report to the nearest Armed Forces medical facility immediately for treatment and to notify the medical authorities of all facts about the incident (particularly the identity of the animal and its owner, and the address and telephone number of the owner). It is the responsibility of the owner of the offending animal, regardless of the circumstances of the biting incident, to immediately take the animal to a military veterinary clinic and have the animal examined and quarantined. These procedures are directed by USARYIS Regulation 40-15. It is only through strict adherence to such public health measures that the bitten person can be given the prompt and continuous protection to which he is entitled.

● Rabies

All animal pets of Armed Forces personnel and civilian personnel subject to military jurisdiction are required to have animal pets that are over 3 months of age vaccinated against rabies as directed by USARYIS Regulation 40-15. In addition, monkeys and similar pets must be tested for tuberculosis and receive other immunization.

● Fresh Fruits and Vegetables

Due to frequent night soil fertilization by local farmers, all fresh fruits and vegetables which are to be eaten raw, and do not originate from the commissary, should be disinfected for 30 minutes with a fresh chlorine solution. A suitable solution may be prepared by mixing 2 teaspoons of liquid bleach (Purex, Clorox, etc.) in one gallon of water. The disinfected solution should then be washed off with tap water. Fruits and vegetables which have not been disinfected should not be stored with those which have been disinfected. Whenever possible fruits and vegetables which are to be eaten raw should be scrubbed and peeled, as well as, disinfected with a chlorine solution. Although fruits and vegetables purchased at the commissary need not be disinfected, they should be thoroughly washed and, if possible, scrubbed before consumption. The commissary continues to be the safest source of fresh fruits and vegetables. (SURGEON - 30101)
